

Barbara Nowak

currently a professor at the University of the National Education Commission in Krakow, PhD in social sciences in social pedagogy and social work, Phd in humanities in history. From 2017 to 2024, docent at the Faculty of Pedagogy at Comenius University in Bratislava. Her research interests include issues of charity directed at helping socially excluded people, especially prisoners including women mothers, in the 19th and early 20th centuries. She also deals with contemporary issues of social readaptation of inmates, post-penitentiary assistance aimed at preparing convicts, including women mothers, for a life of freedom. She is the author of many publications dealing with the above issues and post-penitentiary assistance programs implemented in penitentiary units.

